

Dear Colleague:

I hope that this note finds you healthy and safe. On behalf of the entire Joint Commission International team, I'd like to thank you for everything you are doing to care for patients during this unprecedented time. We want you to know that through this growing COVID-19 pandemic, JCI leaders and staff are committed to supporting health care professionals and organizations like yours, no matter how long it takes.

We recognize the incredible challenge that health care organizations and front-line workers face as you heroically work to save patients. To that end we've made available complimentary tools and resources to support you in the global fight against this pandemic. We will continue to update this library with only those resources that we believe to be particularly useful and trustworthy.

As we navigate through this growing threat that continues to impact the way we live and work, our collective mission has never been more important -- to help global health care providers keep their teams and patients safe.

Thank you for your selfless dedication.

Sincerely,

Paula Wilson
President and CEO
Joint Commission International
