

Attend Joint Commission International's

Advanced Tracer Training

Gain hands-on experience with conducting tracers

This program is especially valuable for health care professionals who have already attended the JCI Practicum and for hospitals that are JCI-accredited.

Attend this four-day program to learn about Tracer Methodology and experience how you can help improve your organization's processes to increase exceptional patient safety performance.

Discover hidden patient safety issues

Uncovering and correcting hidden patient safety problems before they harm patients is one of the most difficult tasks your health care organization faces. Joint Commission International's (JCI) Tracer Methodology has been helping organizations do just that all around the world. JCI's Advanced Tracer Training program is designed to help you become proficient in Tracer Methodology, which in turn can help your hospital achieve its highest level of quality.

Learn from expert faculty

This comprehensive program will provide you with a unique experience of performing actual tracers within a JCI-accredited hospital. Under the guidance and coaching of JCI's experienced faculty, you will learn tracer techniques similar to those used by actual JCI surveyors during on-site accreditation surveys.

Experience the power of tracers

You will be immersed in an interactive curriculum that will help prepare you to conduct all aspects of tracers in your own organization, from pre-planning to improvement planning. You can then go back to your organization and share with others how to conduct tracers to uncover and correct issues in your most critical systems and be better prepared for your next JCI survey.
