

Industry Services

Your health care clients face demanding times. They are constantly challenged to raise the level of quality care and patient satisfaction while facing daunting cost pressures and decreased resources.

Together we can help. As one of the world's leading authorities in patient safety, Joint Commission International (JCI) is uniquely positioned to work with businesses that provide services to health care organizations in various care settings to address the issues organizations face today.

JCI's team of experts can develop education, training, and materials geared to a value-based environment. We customize the content to specific topics – from medication management and hospital-acquired infections to care transitions – so best-practice education can be delivered to your clients' leaders and staff.

Education That Supports Your Clients' Needs and Your Business Goals

Now there is a clear way to deliver leading-edge education to your health care clients, backed by one of the world's authorities in patient safety and performance improvement.

Choose Your Delivery Method

Our team has the experience and expertise to advise you on ideal formats for learning and how to reach larger audiences with options to help disseminate knowledge and improvement strategies.

Tools developed by JCI can be co-branded to support and enhance your client relationships. This fresh approach to education demonstrates that you are aligned to their mission to improve the health of the patients and communities they serve.
